Office Hours: 302D Woodburn Hall, TR 2:15-3:15

Course Description:
Reactionary or revolutionary? Ideology or the rejection of ideas? Confined to interwar Europe or alive and well today? More than sixty years after its demise, fascism continues to fascinate yet resists definition. This course examines key themes in the history and historiography of fascism in Italy, Germany and other national contexts from Spain to Romania, as well as postwar neo-fascism. We will explore a range of topics including intellectual origins, the mobilization of culture, the totalitarian state, and political violence. In addition to reading recent scholarship on fascism, we will consider art, propaganda and film from the period.

Course Structure:
Each week of the course is dedicated to a specific theme or problem in the historiographical literature. The Tuesday session every week will be devoted to a lecture on key events and concepts from the readings; the second session (Thursday) will be a workshop-style discussion in which students engage directly with the texts.

Undergraduate Assignments:

Papers (45%): A midterm and a final paper, worth 20% and 25% of your grade respectively. Each paper is approximately 6-8 pages double-spaced. Assignment prompts will be distributed in class, and will assess your ability to understand and respond to the arguments made in the readings, lectures and class discussion. Papers must use the Chicago style of citation; see eCampus for the style guide. On eCampus you can also find a paper grading rubric and an explanation of grading criteria.

Students have the option of doing a rewrite of the midterm paper. When submitting a rewrite, you must also submit the original version of the paper, with my comments included. I strongly encourage you to consult with me in revising papers. Rewrites will be accepted up to two weeks after graded papers are returned.

Alternative Undergraduate Paper Assignment (45%): Undergraduates may also opt to complete the paper assignment for graduate students; see below for details. Writing a longer research paper would be especially useful to students planning to take my capstone course next semester, HIST 484: European Totalitarianism. If you are interested in taking this option, you must notify me before the midterm paper prompt is handed out on Tuesday, October 5th. Like the graduate students, you will need to meet with me to discuss your topic and submit a proposal and bibliography.

Reflection Assignment (15%): In the early weeks of the semester, you will write a brief (2-3 page) reflection on the broad themes of the course; you will then revisit this paper at the end of term. Further explanation will be given in class.

Participation and Attendance (20%): Students are expected to attend class, to come prepared and to contribute constructively to our discussions. Be prepared to dissect the texts and ask questions. I do not distinguish between excused and unexcused absences; however, I understand that illness and problems can arise, so you will be allowed two “free” absences over the course of the semester. Be judicious about how you use these absences. If you use up your absences early in the semester, I will not be sympathetic when you need to miss class later in the term. Perfect attendance will raise your participation grade; multiple absences will lower it.

Group Presentation (20%): Over the course of the semester, groups of students will take turns leading a Thursday discussion class. Your group will give an approximately 20 minute summary of the readings and then pose questions that will serve as the basis for our conversation. An effective presentation will capture authors’ arguments, relate the text to our current discussions, and raise questions that will stimulate collective participation. Each student must also submit a 1-2 page written summary of their contribution to the presentation. A sign-up sheet will be distributed in coming weeks.

Extra Credit: Students may earn up to 5% extra credit by writing an analysis of a film that is relevant to the themes of the course; see the course website for a list of approved films. The paper should be approximately 3-4 pages double-spaced. Students are encouraged to consult with me for guidance ahead of time. You may only hand in one extra credit assignment per semester.

Graduate Assignments:

Term Paper (60%): Graduate students will write a 15-20 page historiography paper on a subject of their choice, chosen in consultation with me and relevant to the themes of the course. In addition to assigned readings, they must choose 4-6 works of scholarly literature (books, journal articles, etc.) on their topic. By the end of the seventh week of term (Thursday, September 30th), students must submit a 2-3 page proposal and preliminary bibliography and meet with me individually to discuss their project.
Participation and Attendance (20%): See above for attendance policies. I expect graduate students to be active participants in class, especially given the importance of intellectual debate to your program of study. At the same time, please be inclusive and respectful of undergraduates in your contributions.

Group Presentation (20%): See above.

Extra Credit: There is no extra credit for graduate students.

Readings:
The following books are available for purchase at the campus bookstore. Other readings, indicated by an asterisk (*), are available on eCampus.

- Roger Griffin, ed., Fascism (Oxford University Press, 1995)

Course Expectations:

Assignments: The papers must be submitted in HARD COPY and stapled – not sent via email. They should be double-spaced, with 1-inch margins and in 12-point font. Late papers will be deducted half a grade level (e.g. A to A-, B+ to B) for every day that they are late, beginning at the time at which they are due. No extensions will be given.

Communication: I will often communicate with the class via your WVU email account (MIX). Please be sure to check it regularly. Email is also the best way to contact me. When emailing, please ensure that you are polite and professional; an unpunctuated Blackberry message with no salutation will not be answered. I will work hard to get back to you in a timely manner.

Courtesy during Class: It is disruptive to others to arrive late to class or leave early. Please don’t do it. If you know that you will have to leave class early, explain the situation to me beforehand and sit near the door so that you can exit as quietly as possible. Please turn off all cell phones, beepers, or any other wireless device that may make noise during class. I will confiscate your device if it rings in class. You may use a laptop in class for taking notes, but if you are using it for email, instant-messaging, or any other activity I will ask you to stop using your computer.

Writing Center: Writing is one of the most important skills in this course. You are encouraged to use the WVU Writing Center to help you revise papers. More information on the Writing Center’s resources can be found via a link on the course eCampus page.

Academic Integrity: Plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty will be dealt with severely. At a minimum, offenders will fail the course. Plagiarism means “submitting, without appropriate acknowledgement, a report, notebook, speech, outline, theme, thesis, dissertation, or other written, visual, or oral material that has been copied in whole or in part from the work of others, whether such source is published or not, including (but not limited to) another individual’s academic composition, compilation, or other product, or commercially prepared paper” (WVU Undergraduate Catalog, 2003-2005, p. 47). Plagiarism includes not only lifting passages word for word without using quotation marks (even if you cite the author!), but also the substantial use of anyone else’s ideas without citing them. Using material from the World Wide Web without citing it is plagiarism. Your work is made stronger, not weaker, by showing that you are able to refer to the work of others and comment upon it critically. Whenever you use material word for word, you must use quotation marks and cite the proper author.

WVU Social Justice Statement: West Virginia University is committed to social justice. I concur with that commitment and expect to maintain a positive learning environment based upon open communication, mutual respect, and non-discrimination. Our University does not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, age, disability, veteran status, religion, sexual orientation, color, or national origin. Any suggestions as to how to further such a positive and open environment in this class will be appreciated and given serious consideration. If you are a person with a disability and anticipate needing any type of accommodation in order to participate in this class, please advise me and make appropriate arrangements with Disability Services (293-6700).
